Best Sample Answer

“Please make a brief introduction about yourself.”

Say It in English!

First of all, I am very pleased to meet you. My name is Richard Felts, and I will be graduating with a B.A. degree from New York University, majoring in business administration with a minor in sociology. I am applying for a position in your company's Overseas Business Department. During college, I took several business management courses, and I also completed a year language program in China during my sophomore year, so I speak fluent Chinese. Also, I participated in an internship program at this company last winter. From the experience, I learned effective time management skills and acquired negotiation skills essential for this position. I would like to use this opportunity to describe my potential contribution to your company. Thank you for inviting me today for an interview.

“What hobbies or activities do you enjoy?”

I love mountain climbing. Since my freshman year in college, I've been visiting Internet cafés to meet people who share my interest in climbing mountains. Through mountain climbing, I've learned that effort and patience are essential in achieving goals. I usually climb the mountain near my house, and it takes about two hours to climb up and down. I feel refreshed after mountain climbing and can release stress that I had all week.

“If there was something that you could change about yourself, what would it be? Why?”

It takes a bit longer for me to finish a task than other people because I always try to have my work done perfectly, looking carefully at minute details. I want to speed up my working pace and increase my ability to work fast. I believe I can be even more professional once I master the true management skill . If I can combine my meticulous nature and time efficiency, I believe the quality of my work results will improve.
